It went extremely well.

The panel was well balanced and participated in a robust dialogue.

The public comments were quite full of praise and constructive comments – most of which we are already doing. We even finished early and wrapped up the entire peer review yesterday afternoon.

The panel provide very constructive criticism but was quite voluminous with praise for the innovation, the transparency, the meeting materials including the white papers and supplemental files including Heroizing the documents. The presentations and clarifications provided by the agency helped tremendously move the conversation forward and it was critical that key ORD partners were present for the meeting.

I haven't read about it in the press yet, so I assume all is going well. I certainly hope so!
